

If You Ain't Got A Woman

w/m D.C. Getschal

Ain't got no trouble following me
And I'm as happy as one man can be Ain't got no drama, no tears and no pain
I'm feeling good and movin' forward again
Love can surely make it hard to keep it that way
It's always a woman that'll lead me astray

No matter how up I'm wound (up I'm wound)
It's always a woman that'll bring me down (brings me down)
Distracts my attention from what I should do
She finds me, she loves me, she leaves me in ruins
Love is like fire and what I've learned
If you ain't got a woman then you won't get burned.

No one to tell me I'm doing it wrong
No one to say that I'm taking too long
No one complaining 'bout how it should be
No fussin or fightin' so peaceful and free
If I get lonely or start feeling low
I simply remember what I already know

So I've adapted to life on my own
It's my fortress of solitude my home sweet home
Things where I left them when I get back
I'm self contained there's nothing I lack

Ain't no use to worry bout a woman
Nothing you do will ever change her mind
Everyone's just a little bit human
I've got needs so I'll keep trying

Pray I don't slip up and stumble 'cause then
All of my troubles start all over again
I Hope there's one girl who's got what it takes To keep me from making the same old mistakes
When I start thinking about women and pleasure
The cost is too high in ways you can't measure.
